Verbal Description:

This piece is of a tan paste with some white inclusions and a black firing core. The back side of the base piece is very uneven, suggesting that it is an applied element rather than part of a censer wall. Applied to the base is a plain spiked projection and below it is a lump scar where something else was applied. Looking at the piece from the front, there is a rough surface on the right side of the projection with a firing core exposed where it appears something else was applied.
